

The Museum at Silver Reef, Leeds, Utah

Open Monday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, 10 am – 5 pm

The Silver Reef Foundation

(SRF) is a Utah non-profit organization formed to preserve the history of what was Southern Utah's most vibrant mining town. Prospectors and miners, adventurers and entrepreneurs flocked to the town in the 1880's – drawn by silver ore found in the sandstone reefs. Today it is a ghost town whose ruins and artifacts need to be preserved, interpreted and appreciated.

Community volunteers have stepped forward to help tell Silver Reef's unique story. With SRF's help they are studying the history, documenting exhibits, expanding the Museum's trove of artifacts, and developing an interpretive walking trail. Through volunteer efforts, the Museum at Silver Reef is becoming a source of education and entertainment, drawing visitors ranging from foreign tourists to local school children.

Ways You Can Help!

The Museum is supported entirely by donations. Your generous tax-deductible contributions will help to pay for the projects and operation of the Museum.

You can also help in other ways by:

- Serving as a volunteer docent at the Museum or special events
- Donating your time to document and categorize exhibits
- Bringing friends and family to visit the Museum

For questions about the SRF, please call Eric Fleming at 435-879-2254
